Congress Speeds Action On $160,000,000 Tax Cut

ACTIVE WEEK IS FORESEEN FOR CONGRESS

Vare Controversy Expected to Take Considerable Time at Capital

MUST FILL VACANCIES

Realignment of Committee Chairmanships Result of Warren's Death

Washington—(AP)—Preparing to make a final report on the Vare-Wilson contest in the 1928 Pennsylvania senatorial election, the senate election subcommittee called counsel for the two men to appear at a hearing late today.

Senate leaders, meanwhile, were in conference looking to adjustment of a program for consideration of the long standing Vare case while will come before the senate tomorrow.

Senator-elect Vare, who has been ill for more than a year, reached the city prepared to go before the senate and defend himself.

Washington—Judging by the activity already manifested, congress should have a busy week beginning today.

Although the first few days of the session are usually consumed in preliminary organization, this time there will be action. The resolution to reduce taxes will pass both houses practically without debate and probably by an overwhelming vote.

The vote to unseat Senator-elect Vare of Pennsylvania will not be delayed. It is expected that before the end of the week the governor of Pennsylvania will be appointed, and a senator to fill the vacancy, as it is a foregone conclusion that if the senate does come to a vote Mr. Vare will be denied his seat.

There is just a possibility that the request of Senator-elect Vare for a re-count should turn out in favor of matters, though Senator Norris of Nebraska is concentrating his fight on the expenditures in the primary election rather than the irregularities in the final count. The Democrats, of course, might gain a senator if the recount should turn out in favor of William B. Wilson, former secretary of labor, who ran on the Democratic ticket against Mr. Vare. It is hardly likely, however, that the insurgent Republicans would vote to seat the Democratic nominee, preferring to make a record on the issue of primary expenditures which they deem to be excessive.

JONES SUCCEEDS WARREN

The death of Senator Warren leaves a vacancy in the chairmanship of the committee on appropriations and this in turn means a realignment of committee chairmanships. Senator Smith has decided to retain the chairmanship of the finance committee instead of taking charge of the appropriations committee which means that Senator Jones of Washington will succeed Mr. Warren. He has been head of the commerce committee, which could go to Senator McNary of Oregon, as he is the ranking member but he prefers to remain at the head of the committee on agriculture. Senator Johnson of California is next in line for chairman of the

HIGH COURT TO PASS ON SEIZURE OF BOOZE CARS

Washington—(AP)—The supreme court today consented to decide whether the federal government has the right to confiscate under the internal revenue laws automobiles seized in connection with illegal transportation of intoxicating liquor, a question of great importance in the automobile industry.

The supreme court also consented to pass on the authority of the prohibition bureau to place a time limit on permits governing the use of liquor in the manufacture of medicinal preparations.

Solons' Pay Case Before High Court

Madison—(AP)—The state supreme court today was to hear arguments on the petition filed by Rudolph Zimmerman, a Milwaukee taxpayer, to prevent payment of increased salaries voted by the 1929 legislature to itself.

A constitutional provision says no state officer shall receive an increase of salary during his tenure of office, and the argument today is expected to attempt to decide if members of the legislature are state officers.

Zimmerman's petition seeks an injunction to prevent state officers from making payments to present legislative members. Frank W. Kuehl, assistant attorney general, represents legislators and state officers.

The increase in salaries from $500 a session to $2,400 was voted by the legislature and approved by Gov. Walter J. Kohler after the electorate approved a constitutional amendment favoring the increase.

Attorney H. S. Sloane, Milwaukee, representing Mr. Zimmerman, said such increases are against the public policy as defined by the constitution. The members, in taking their oaths of office, agreed to work for the constitutional limit, then $500, he said, and their attempts to go more for themselves are violations of that contract. They also swore to uphold the constitution, he argued, and their attempts to get the increase for themselves are violation of that affirmation.

Assistant Attorney General Kuehl argued that the legislators are representatives of the people of the state, and not state officers.

He pointed to the fact that 17 members of the senate, holding over under the four-year uncompleted terms, received increased salaries in 1927 for which they had voted during the previous term. Elected by districts, he said, the legislators are in a sense local officers, if officers at all, like sheriffs and district attorneys.

Following is Mr. Claus' radiogram: "Dear Friends in Appleton: Perhaps you are wondering why you didn't hear from me sooner than this. Well I must explain that first of all my coworkers and myself have been so busy completing our rush of work preparatory to Christmas that I have scarcely had time to breathe. Then, besides, the North Pole land has been the scene of a continual blizzard for the last two weeks and the strong wind blew down my broadcasting station and we had to wait until the storm was over before we could make repairs.

"I am not sure just what time I will arrive in your city on Monday, Dec. 9, but it will be early in the morning. I expect to bring my largest 'air sleigh' teamed by my most favorite reindeer teams, Dunder and Blixen, and Prancer and Dancer. To help me on the trip I expect to bring Ernak, Igloolik and Tatuk. When the trip begins it will be necessary to use four teams of reindeer to pull the sleigh across the dreary and desolate spaces of the Arctic circle. Two of the teams will be left behind at the edge of the ice circle and I shall remain with them until we return. Tatuk and Ernak will come to Appleton with me.

"While I am in Appleton I expect to visit all the stores where managers have been so kind as to offer me a little of their extra space to store some of the Christmas gifts which will be distributed in Appleton and vicinity on Christmas eve. But now I must get back to work. You will hear from me later. With all my love and merry holiday season greetings from your old friend, Santa Claus."

Santa forgot to explain that Ernak and Tatuk are two of his reindeer helpers. Tatuk means Big Bear and Ernak means Little Bear. Practically all of Mr. Claus' letters at the North Star Lodge at North Pole land are Esquimaux because they are the only ones who can stand the intense cold. Ordinary people are unable to stand the subzero weather that exists practically all the year around at Santa Claus' home.

Receipts of this radiogram sent members of the official committee, arriving Monday to complete arrangements for welcoming and entertaining Santa Claus. The chairman of the committee promised he would have definite arrangements for the gala day ready for transportation Tuesday or Wednesday.

ANOTHER SHIP LOST; 1 DEAD, FIVE MISSING

Rough Sea Keeps Aid from Canadian Craft—U. S. Freighter Demolished

Oswego, N. Y.—(AP)—The steamer Sarniadoc, Canadian registry, was grounded on Main Duck Island, 25 miles from here in Lake Ontario, with heavy seas sweeping here today. The freighter, loaded with 2,300 tons of grain and carrying a crew of 22 men went ashore in a northwest gale.

The freighter Valley Camp of Cleveland, was reported standing by coast guardsmen were on the scene this morning, but the heavy surf and rough water prevented them going to the freighter. Attempts also were made to reach a salvage and wrecking steamer at Kingston, Ont.

The Sarniadoc is owned by the Paterson Steamship company, of Fort William, Ont., one of a fleet of 56 freighters operated by the company.

The Sarniadoc went aground in yesterday's blizzard, when visibility was at a minimum. She was fast on one of the numerous jagged reefs surrounding the Duck Islands and struck about 500 feet off before a lighthouse on Main Duck Island.

The island is one of a string of rocky formations stretching across Lake Ontario between Stony Point and the eastern tip of Prince Edward Island.

Owners of the Valley Camp were reported in messages from Cleveland to be worried about their ship. She was bucking high seas as she stood by the dead weight of 2,300 tons of coal in her hold.

Radio advice from Main Duck related to Captain George A. Jackson of the coast guard here, said the

AIRMAIL PLANE AND PILOT ARE MISSING

Cleveland—(AP)—Pilot Thomas P. Nelson of Plainfield, N. J., flying the airmail from Bellefonte, Pa., to Cleveland, was hours overdue here today and officials of the National Air Transport company feared he might have fallen to ride through a snow storm over the Pennsylvania mountains.

Nelson, who left Bellefonte at 11:15 p. m. yesterday, was scheduled to arrive here at 2:15 a. m. He was last reported over Brookville, Pa., at 12:45 a. m.

D. E. Underhill, eastland airmail pilot, arrived safely at Bellefonte early today, but reported a stiff battle with a snowstorm around Clarion, Pa., and it was feared that Nelson might have met with disaster in this area.

Los Angeles—(AP)—Cancellation of oil leases in Kern-co. Calif., said to be valued at $15,000,000, is sought in the suit of the United States against the Pan-American Petroleum company which began today before Judge Frank H. Norcross in federal court here. The suit involves three oil leases totaling 650 acres.

The government charges that the leases were made through asserted fraud between Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior and Edward L. Doheny, head of the Pan-American company.

In addition to an injunction forbidding further use of the lands and the cancellation of leases, the government seeks an accounting for profits already derived.

The complaint charges that President Harding's order transferring certain oil reserves from the navy to the interior department was illegal, and not to the best interest of the United States. It further charges that following the transfer, Fall, then secretary of the interior and Doheny, brought about leases in the Elk Hills, Calif., field for private profit and as the result of a conspiracy.

It was regarded in Shanghai as almost certain that Dr. Wang would make such intimation in view of the difficulty in which the Nanking government has been placed in consequence of the separate negotiations between Moscow and Mukden.

In addition the extra territorially problem, which threatens to become acute by the end of the month, is likely to prove highly embarrassing for any foreign minister.

Two dispatches said that pressure undoubtedly was being exercised in various quarters to induce Dr. Wang to reconsider his decision.

Manila—(AP)—Governor Corbin of Philippine provinces today reported to the executive board that seven members of a wedding party, including the bride, were killed when a boat capsized in a storm off Manila on Sunday.

The tragedy occurred while the party was on the way to the city of Manila for the wedding ceremony. The boat, which was a motor launch, was overturned and the bride and groom were killed. The other party members were rescued.

Train Bandit Is Wanted In Two States

Pawnee, Okla.—(AP)—A skirmish was in the making today between Wyoming and California authorities for custody of Tom Vernon, 43, arrested here as a suspect in train robberies in the two states.

Vernon, former cowboy, rodeo performer, trainman and convict, was arraigned today before Charles Besly, county judge, on a charge of being a fugitive from justice in connection with robbery of a Southern Pacific passenger train near Saugus, Calif., Nov. 10, after the train had been derailed. Hearing on the charge was set for Dec. 12.

Meanwhile Gov. Frank C. Emerson of Wyoming, telegraphed Gov. W. J. Holloway of Oklahoma, asking that Vernon be held for Wyoming authorities until request papers can be transmitted. The prisoner is wanted in Wyoming for the wrecking and robbery of the Union Pacific railroad's Portland limited near Cheyenne last Monday night.

Vernon denied he was implicated in either crime.

ASK DEATH PENALTY

Cheyenne, Wyo.—(AP)—John C. Pickett, prosecuting attorney, indicated today the death penalty will be asked if Tom Vernon, arrested in Pawnee, Okla., last night is brought here for trial on a charge of wrecking and robbing the Union Pacific Portland limited.

BRITAIN, U. S. MOVE TO BAR WAR IN ORIENT

Japan Refuses to Take Part in Joint 5-power Declaration for Peace

London—(AP)—Foreign Secretary Henderson announced in the house of commons today that, at the instance of the United States, the government of Great Britain has agreed to joint Anglo-American representations to Russia and China calling their attention to their obligations under the Kellogg pact in view of the disturbed situation in Manchuria.

Berlin—(AP)—Jacob Gough Schurman, American ambassador to Germany, today presented to Foreign Minister Curtius a copy of the note sent by the American government to Soviet Russia by way of France and to China, calling attention to their obligations under the Kellogg renunciation of war pact.

With the text Ambassador Schurman presented a verbal note giving the reasons why the American government took the step it did and expressing hope that the German government would join the United States in similar action.

Tokio—(AP)—Official quarters disclosed today that the Japanese government, in response to the proposal of Secretary of State Stimson of the United States, for a joint five-power declaration warning Russia and China of their obligations under the Kellogg anti-war pact, had unhesitatingly indicated that such action was untimely and unnecessary.

It was believed here that the suggestion will be dropped. It was definitely learned that the American proposal and the Japanese reply were exchanged during the American Charge d'Affaires Neville's interviews with Baron Kijuro Shidehara, Japanese foreign minister, last week.

Although the draft of the proposed declaration was presented to Baron Shidehara, its exact contents were not disclosed.

The official Japanese view has been that the recent Soviet invasion did not differ essentially in character from the series of previous raids.

Further more, it was believed that a declaration at the time would be interpreted by Moscow as a violation of a neutrality either charging Russia with being the aggressor or an intervention in behalf of China.

London—(AP)—A Renner's dispatch from Shanghai says that Dr. C. T. Wang, Nationalist foreign minister, has intimated privately that he will resign at the end of this month.

Dr. Wang was quoted as stating he was disheartened by the public criticism regarding negotiations for settlement of the Chinese Eastern railway dispute.

It was regarded in Shanghai as almost certain that Dr. Wang would make such intimation in view of the difficulty in which the Nanking government has been placed in consequence of the separate negotiations between Moscow and Mukden.

ASK 4 MILLION FOR FLOOD DAMAGE IN FOX RIVER VALLEY

Oshkosh—(AP)—A resolution authorizing the drafting of a damage claim bill against the federal government and asking congress to grant a right to bring action for flood damage in the Fox river valley to the amount of $4,000,000, was passed at the annual meeting of the Association for the Relief of High Water held here.

Man H. Tripp, Oshkosh, was named president of the association for the ensuing year. Other officers are: W. J. Kelley, Van Dyne, treasurer; John Sutton, Larson, secretary; George Overton, Oshkosh, vice president.

The association, in another resolution, asked that the water power companies of the Fox river valley maintain 15 inches of water above the crest of the Menasha dam for another year, beginning March, 1930.

Under customary procedure the resolution was referred back to the ways and means committee for consideration. This committee first must pass on all revenue legislation as the constitution provides that the house alone can initiate such proposals.

Hawley has announced he hopes to have it approved by the committee and called up in the house for action before the weekend. Democrats have indicated they will cooperate.

In the senate leaders also are prepared to expedite consideration. The hope has been expressed in many quarters that the measure will be in the hands of the president before the Christmas recess.

Salvage crews today were removing the last of the wreckage of a train that left the rails, piling up eight coaches with a death toll of nine persons and an injured list of 24. The train was bound from Cape Charles, Va., on the Pennsylvania railroad for New York with excursionists.

Children order, "save women and children first," shouted by Earl E. Chenoweth, boatswain's mate, attached to the Littlefield Oklahoma, probably saved scores from death in the stampede that started in an overturned third car, said A. V. Kemp, of Norfolk, a survivor. Chenoweth was injured himself.

Doctors said that Mrs. Kemp was saved from death by the sailor, who tied a handkerchief above Mrs. Kemp's half severed wrist.

Five of the dead were white and four were negroes. The dead are: Miss Grace Kelly, 22, Norfolk, Va.; Mrs. Annie Adams, 20, Norfolk, Va.; Ralph Smith, 19, Middleburg, N. Y.; seaman attached to the U. S. S. Utah; Marion A. Calloway, brakeman, Delmar, Md., an unidentified man wearing a Masonic emblem with the initials W. C. Kane, Diego, Negro, Norfolk, Va.; three unidentified Negroes.

Four hundred and eight-eight passengers were speeding up the eastern shore peninsula of Virginia early Sunday when they were thrown from their seats under a shower of flying glass as the cars struck a broken rail and careened. Ten coaches were overturned and four behind smashed into them. The locomotive and the first two cars remained on the tracks.

Automobile Runs Into Freight Train at W. Eighth-st Crossing

An Appleton and a Kimberly man were killed, two men were seriously injured, and a girl received minor injuries in accidents in Appleton and Oakshott over the weekend. The casualties:

Phillip Bouressa, 22, Kimberly, killed.

Joseph J. Strobl, 40, 201 N. Story-st., killed.

George Dieck, 30, 231 Flag-st., Aurora, Ill., in serious condition with broken nose, several broken ribs and a crushed chest.

George Lemmers, 29, Kimberly, loss of right eye, several lacerations about the face and a broken left leg.

Miss Emma Strobl, 19, Appleton, severe shock and minor cuts and bruises.

Bouressa was fatally injured and Lemmers and Dieck were hurt when the car in which they were riding crashed into the side of a south bound Chicago and Northwestern freight train at the Eight-and-a-half crossing about 10 p. m. Saturday evening.

The car, owned by Bouressa, was being driven by Dieck who did not see the moving freight cars. The machine was demolished. When the engineer of the train, E. P. Haler, found the car, he received an emergency signal to stop and throw on the air brakes. Two of the cars, a box car and a refrigerator, jumped the rails. One of the cars tipped over about a half a mile beyond the crossing and traffic on the main line was tied up for seven and a half hours until emergency crews had removed the obstructions from the tracks. The rails were not damaged and traffic was resumed about 1 o'clock. During the interval it was necessary to send passenger trains through Kaukauna on the Ashland division of the road on the south side of the Fox river.

TELEPHONE COMPANY IS NOT EFFECTED BY RECENT STOCK CRASH

Work on $2,000,000 and $425,000 Projects Is Well Underway Here

Assurance that the Wisconsin Telephone company's expansion program in this district for 1930 will not be hindered by recent stock market upheavals, was contained in a message from President William H. McGovern, Milwaukee, to F. N. Belanger, acting district manager.

Appleton is included in the $2,000,000 cable construction project, and the company also is constructing a new $250,000 addition to the local exchange building in which $225,000 worth of equipment will be installed.

The structure will eventually be six stories high, but at present only four stories are to be built, until it is necessary that the other two stories be added to house additional equipment, according to Mr. Belanger. Work on the cable is now under way in this city, and approximately 500 local men have been employed by the company, thus adding to the employment situation in the city.

"We have kept in close touch with business conditions," the message said, "and have every reason to believe that the trade outlook for 1930 is as encouraging as at any time in the past. The expenditures for improving and facilitating telephone service in 1930 are based on our belief that continued advancement will be made in business of the city, state and nation. There is no evidence to shake our faith in the stability of business," Mr. McGovern writes.

"The work planned in the Appleton district including the construction of the Milwaukee-Appleton trunk line and the addition of the Appleton and Oshkosh central office buildings will be carried through to completion in 1930. Provisions for an extensive and comprehensive construction program in the Appleton district is now successfully underway," he concluded.

THREE CARS DAMAGED IN WEEKEND COLLISION

Three cars were slightly damaged in an accident about 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon on W. Prospect. Stephen Konz, 605 N. Oneida, driving east on Prospect, collided with Myron H. Hendricks, 502 W. ## Talks To Parents

NOT ENOUGH ATTENTION By Alice Judson Peale

Five-year-old Betty spent her morning at kindergarten and her afternoon playing with children out in the park under the supervision of her nurse.

When she came home for supper, she found her mother entertaining some ladies at tea. She was led into the living room where she kissed her mother and said "How do you do?" to all the ladies and then walked directly out again quite in the manner of the model child.

A few moments later there were sounds of a struggle in the hall and the guests were amazed to see a small whirlwind of tears and anger rush into the room and leap on its mother's lap.

"Tell all those ladies to go home, mother. I want you to come up to my room—I don't want you to stay here. I want you to come and watch me have my supper."

The occasion was not one for discipline. Betty had seen nothing of her mother all day and it is not strange that she thus should violently demand attention. Too often we blame the child for misbehaving when he has been under a strain which makes misbehavior inevitable.

Every child needs a certain amount of attention and the assurance of affection. Many women nowadays, not only those who are rich enough to keep a nurse, but also those who earn money in full time positions outside the home, pay far too little attention to their children.

Such naughtiness as Betty's is the happiest response to this neglect. The little girl voiced her needs openly, and she was not likely to be denied. There are many children whose response to psychological neglect is much more serious, while it is far more obscure and less likely to be understood.

YEARLY FIRE LOSS ON FARMS AS HIGH AS $150,000,000

Estimate Places Loss of Life from Same Cause at 3,500

BY W. F. WINSEY

The yearly losses from fires on farms and in rural communities of this country have been estimated to run as high as $150,000,000, according to a report issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

"We often see fires on farms or read of them but we do not comprehend the losses of the unfortunate owners nor the figures that represent the total losses from farm fires over the country," he says. "We do know, however, that the majority of the fires could have been prevented."

Eight of the chief causes of farm fires are listed in Leaflet No. 44, "Fires on Farms," by Mr. Roche as follows: Spontaneous or self-ignition of hay and other agricultural products; lightning; defective chimneys and flues; careless use of matches, smoking, defective heating equipment; faulty wiring and improper use of electric appliances.

Farmers can reduce the chances of loss by fires, Mr. Roche says, by: (1) Properly curing hay before storing it; (2) adding salt (0.5 per cent by weight) to damp or improperly cured hay as it is placed in the barns or stacked; (3) by guarding against leaky roofs and leaky sides of barns; (4) by venting hay stacks as far as possible after it has been stored.

"Hay in the mow or stack which is at all suspicious should be examined frequently. If the hay a few feet from the surface is too hot for the hand to be held in, examine it thoroughly to ascertain the condition of the interior. In addition get in touch with your state or federal authorities."

LISTS CAUTION MEASURES For protecting against lightning, Mr. Roche advises: (1) Major buildings be equipped with properly installed and well maintained lightning rods; (2) substantial metal rods with all parts in good electrical contact and with proper groundings. Protect livestock by grounding at reasonable distances all wire fences inclosing pastures or yards.

Properly construct chimneys and flues and maintain them in good condition. Use only safety matches on the premises and keep matches away from children. Do not permit smoking in barns or near combustible materials.

Store small quantities of gasoline and kerosene in original containers in isolated locations. Place large quantities of gasoline in underground tanks. Never use gasoline or kerosene to quicken a fire. Do not use inflammable liquids for cleaning purposes in the home. See that electrical wiring meets the requirements of the National Electrical Code. Disconnect electric appliances when not in use. Keep the premises free from litter and rubbish. Burn or place in metal receptacles only waste and rags as they may ignite spontaneously. Do not pile horse manure in stables or against buildings as it may heat enough to cause fire.

MULLENIX TO SPEAK AT P. T. A. MEETING

Dr. R. C. Mullenix, Lawrence college, will discuss Heredity and Education at the meeting of the P. T. A. at the school at 7:30 Monday night. Miss Florence Roate, Lawrence Conservatory of Music, and soloist last summer with the 10th Field Artillery Band, will sing.

EXPECT TO COMPLETE EXCAVATION TUESDAY

Excavation for the new $250,000 addition to the Wisconsin Telephone building on W. Washington will be completed by Tuesday, according to F. N. Belanger, acting district manager. Construction work on the new building will get underway immediately. Approximately $225,000 worth of new equipment is to be installed.

cleaning purposes in the home. See that electrical wiring meets the requirements of the National Electrical Code. Disconnect electric appliances when not in use. Keep the premises free from litter and rubbish. Burn or place in metal receptacles only waste and rags as they may ignite spontaneously. Do not pile horse manure in stables or against buildings as it may heat enough to cause fire.

For fire protection, eliminate all fire hazards but be prepared to fight fires in case they occur. Ladders, axes, chemical extinguishers and water pails, and barrels or tanks equipped with pumps should be available on every farm.

A water-pressure system affords a desirable source of water supply. Rural communities should have adequate motorized fire apparatus and a trained volunteer department.

The Department of Agriculture is studying the causes of fires on farms and is developing means for prevention. Information on farm fire prevention will be gladly furnished on request.

Warn About Fire Dangers In Christmas Tree Lights

Although the hazard of fire—the danger of the Christmas tree decorated with burning candles, has been appreciably decreased by the use of electric lights in the last few years, the manufacturers of electrical equipment report the number has been greatly reduced.

Care should be taken to keep metallic tinsel away from the base of the lamp, as this may cause a short circuit, burning out fuses and sometimes causing fires. There also is a danger in connecting too many lamps or extra large bulbs to the one lighting circuit. It is pointed out as overburdened circuits are usually become overheated. Electric lights should be installed on from the electrical inspection department in an effort to keep Appleton's Christmas fires down to a minimum.

conservation group plans winter feeding. The aid of Louis Jeske, game warden for Outagamie co., has been sought by the state conservation commission with planning a program of winter feeding of game birds when the snow is so deep these birds would have difficulty finding food. The commission points out that a small amount of money is available for its purpose and it is its desire to make a survey at once to determine what food conditions are in this territory and with specific recommendations as to steps needed to be taken during the approaching winter. The commission desires to know if there are prairie chickens, sharp-shinned grouse, quail, partridge or pheasants in the county and where feeding needs to be carried on. The commission intends to enter the aid of conservation groups in the county in this project.

How to Choose a Radio

The prospective buyer of radio is often confused by the mass of claims and counter-claims advanced by competitive makers and dealers. The essentials of a fine radio receiver are easily discovered. Look for them... find them before you buy... and don't be misled or distracted by glib argument.

Ask Yourself — and Your Ears — These Questions

- 1 Is the tone convincing, real life-like?
- 2 Is it warm and vibrant and sonorous... or merely noisy?
- 3 Is the bass rich and clear and deep — or is it only a rumbling, "muddy" reverberation?
- 4 Are the middle tones of voice and instrument clear, natural, full of resonant?
- 5 Are the upper tones bright and distinct, or are they clouded or shrill?
- 6 Does the speaking voice sound perfectly natural? Are "s" sounds perfect, or do they sound like "f"?
- 7 Does the voice seem present, or does it seem to come through a megaphone?
- 8 Is the music perfect at full volume, or does the loud-speaker rattle, or is there distortion at full volume?
- 9 Does the music impress you as being real rather than reproduced?
- 10 How does the performance compare with that of Atwater-Kent?
- 11 Is the set sensitive enough to bring in distant stations at satisfactory volume?
- 12 Can you tune out unwanted programs without difficulty?
- 13 Is tuning simple, instantaneous, as in Atwater-Kent?
- 14 Do you locate stations on the dial at their proper frequency (kilocycles)?
- 15 Is the cabinet modern, compact, and of best workmanship?
- 16 Is it ornate with meaningless decoration, or simple and dignified?
- 17 Is it reasonably priced?
- 18 Is it worth the money, as far as you can judge?
- 19 Has the maker any considerable experience or reputation in the radio industry? Is his name old and familiar... known for dependability?
- 20 Last and vitally important is it SCREEN-GRID?

Check over these questions with yourself, and you will inevitably be led to an

The 10-mile section of track of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and pany. The work was started last spring. New steel and ties were laid and other new equipment added.

FOLLERIN' THE BAND

WHO hasn't "follered" the band up Main street, or up Broadway or Michigan boulevard? Heart pumping joyously, feet beating the ground in time! Grandly intoxicating moment of childhood!

And later in life—who hasn't felt a thrill as the conductor lifted his baton for the overture to begin? A moment pregnant with the glamour of the theatre! Music casts its spell throughout all the Ages of Man.

Is it wise then, in this enlightened and prosperous day, to countenance substitution of a shadow of music for the real thing in the theatre?

Imagine the Irish following a Music Box on St. Patrick's Day!
Or fire and drum music by a Machine on Memorial Day! Incongruous? Of course, but not more so than a mechanical orchestration in the theatre.

Talking pictures—a new dramatic form; the radio—which transmits music directly and DOES reflect the artist's mood of the moment; the phonograph in the home—where living music usually is not available—are not at issue here. We are discussing only the SUBSTITUTION OF MECHANICAL MUSIC FOR REAL MUSIC IN THE THE-ATRE, in consequence of which Real Music is being eliminated in theatres.

Kibitzers Buy Sponge, Pail, Towel For Weepers

Plans for reorganization of the Appleton Kibitzers club are under way, according to Louis Keller, president.
Mike Steinhauer, secretary-treasurer, and Edward Mumm, cheer leader.
Frank Wheeler, counsel for the group, is drawing up the articles of incorporation.

By way of explanation, it might be said the Kibitzers club is composed of "self-made" men who have outstanding knowledge of every game of chance known. Membership in the Kibitzers club permits the men to butt in on any cards, golf, bowling or billiard game. It permits members to stand behind players, make proper suggestions and analyze mistakes which might have been avoided.

Mr. Keller and Mr. Steinhauer claim that the reorganization is under way because it has been learned that some members of the club are failing to fulfill properly the requirements of membership. In one instance, Mr. Keller said, it is definitely known that a Kibitzer, in direct violation of By-law, Section 23, cashed a check for a friend.

Headquarters of the Kibitzers club are in the room next to the shower room in the basement of the Elks club.

The Story of Sue

MARGERY HALE

© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

FOR a second Sue started at the round, good-natured face of Harry Becker. Even while she caught her breath in fright she noticed the double chin and the round of lines. She saw that blood was coming through the bandage on his arm, as she leaned forward and wrapped on the window which separated her from the taxicab driver.

"Harry! Go any place! To a hospital or a doctor's. Go some place," she almost shouted.

The chauffeur turned, saw the startled, wide blue eyes, stopped the car, and came back to them. He felt Harry's pulse, eased him to a more comfortable position, looked at the bandage, and meantime the millionaire's son opened his eyes.

"I'm a doped idiot," he murmured as soon as he could talk, "stumping over my feet that. Anyone as strong as I am?"

"You are not an idiot," Sue defended him warmly. "You were wonderful to be so brave and I was dumb to make you keep on talking."

She was relieved to think that the heavy bulk that had looked like just pounds of flesh a minute ago was alive again. "You need another doctor, though," she directed the driver to take them to the Becker home and Harry nodded in agreement. Sue had remembered that the Becker home wasn't far from the road where they were.

A butler came down the steps in answer to the chauffeur's frantic signal, and the two men helped Harry into the house. He tried to call Sue but his voice grew faint and she couldn't hear. Lights were shining softly from the dozens of windows at the front of the house, and she could catch a glimpse of long rooms, gleaming with flowers and lamps and colorful tapestries. Then the door closed after the men with a heavy thud.

Sue stood on the steps and wondered what to do. Sue knew that someone ought to explain the situation to Harry's family, in case he lost consciousness again and could not. John Foster might call and annoy them if he found the Becker residence was ignorant of the facts. Finally Sue rang the bell. The same butler who had assisted Harry came to the door.

"I'm Sue Merryman, the girl who was with Mr. Becker at the time of his accident," she explained, with the wide friendly smile that usually accompanied her words. She hoped the servant wouldn't realize that his pompous dignity and gleaming buttons had impressed her more than the plump scion of the family could ever do. "May I see a member of the family, please?"

The butler surveyed Sue from head to foot. His eyes lingered on the torn frock and then found the wide face was motionless as he bowed slightly and ushered Sue into a rose and gold waiting room whose chairs were too high and stiff.

"It's the room where they take people whom they don't like, because they know they won't stay long. The furniture's too uncomfortable," Sue told herself, thinking of the long sweep of comfortable rooms that she had seen from the windows.

A few minutes later a woman, very dignified and austere, entered. Her eyes found the torn clothing at once. "You wish to see someone? What is it, please?"

"I'm Sue Merryman, who was with Mr. Becker at the time of his accident," Sue began, something in the woman's appraising glance sending the color to her cheeks in an angry flood. "I thought that I should explain what happened."

"It really isn't necessary for you to explain anything," the frigid voice answered. "Mr. Becker Harry's father, will see that you are recompensed for the injury done you in the accident so you need not press your claim. Tonight is rather a poor time to present it but he will take care of you tomorrow. And now, good evening, please."

The next morning Sue found herself being ceremoniously bowed out of the house by another butler. On the wide steps she gasped for breath and then, as the ridiculousness of the situation came to her, she leaned against a wide post which held an old English lantern in wrought iron design, and laughed.

"She thought I was going to ask for money," she half laughed, half sobbed, not knowing that her nerves were making her do it.

A car pulled up at the curb and a figure jumped out.

"See!" She recognized Jack's voice and even then thrilled to his tall young strength and the steady gray eyes in the lean, tawny face.

The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

POOR Clowry! He was scared to death. The captain made him catch his breath and start to run like everything. It was a funny sight. The other Tynites felt real sad to think the captain was so mad. Then Clowry shouted, very loudly, "Scout with all your might!"

But Clowry didn't need to be told of his plight. He knew that he was in for quite a spanking if he didn't get away. You can't imagine how it feels to have a big man at your heels who's very, very mad at you. It's mighty far from play.

The captain cried, "I'll catch you soon and then you'll sing another tune. A lad who takes my cookies, cannot stay upon this ship. Out in a boat we'll turn you free and you can drift around at sea. The other little Tynites can continue on our trip."

Of course the captain didn't know that what he charged was far from so. The cookies were not stolen, but were given by the cook. And Clowry wouldn't tell the boss 'cause that would be the poor cook's loss. 'Twas certain he'd be blamed for every bit of food he took.

So on poor, frightened Clowry ran. He thought, gee, if I only can find some nice place to hide in, I'll be thankful as can be. I know that I am in real wrong and Mister Captain looks real strong. When once he lays his hands on me, he'll turn me over his knee.

Just then he reached the big ship's side and over the railing took a slide. The captain didn't see him as he disappeared from sight. An anchor big hung right nearby and Clowry grabbed it with a sigh. Thought he, I've dodged the captain and I guess that I'm all right.

(The anchor is let down into the sea in the next story.)

STATE SENATORIAL HISTORY RECALLED IN OFFICIAL BOOK

Congressional Tome Gives Biography of Our Territorial Delegates

BY RUBY A. BLACK
(Washington Correspondent of the Post-Crescent)

Washington—A tome of large size recently published by Congress recalls interesting facts about Wisconsin senators from the state's earliest history.

This book, giving the biography of every territorial delegate, every senator and every representative from every state up through the 65th Congress, shows that Madison and Milwaukee are the only cities in the Badger State which have produced more than one United States senator. Four senators have come from each of these cities. Green Bay, in addition to its one senator, was the home of the territorial delegate in the 25th Congress, Morgan L. Martin, whose body is buried in Woodlawn cemetery at Green Bay. He moved to Green Bay, then a part of Michigan Territory, in 1827 and was a judge in Brown County, Wisconsin, in 1834. His cousin, James D. Doty, of Ashland, had been Wisconsin Territory's delegate in the 25th Congress.

Wisconsin's admission as a state gave it senatorial representation first in the 30th Congress, when Henry Dodge of Dodgeville and Isaac P. Walker of Milwaukee were the senators, as they continued to be in the 31st and 32nd Congresses.

NONE FROM APPLETON
Other cities which have produced one Wisconsin senator each are: Racine, Kenosha, La Crosse, Oshkosh, Hudson, Marinette, Mayville, Superior and Escanaba.

Racine's one senator, James R. Doolittle, first served in the 35th Congress, with Charles Durkee of Kenosha, and these two represented Wisconsin in the 36th Congress. Then Timothy O. Howe of Green Bay succeeded Durkee.

Think of all the columnists who would make Wisconsin if these two senators represented the Badger State today—"Doolittle—and Howe!" They served together from the 35th to the 40th Congress.

Doolittle, born in New York, started out life as a Democrat, but left that party when the Missouri Compromise was repealed. In addition to his political activities, he was president of the University of Chicago for one year. He is buried in Mount Cemetery at Racine.

Howe was born in Maine and moved to Green Bay in 1848. He helped buy the Black Hills. He participated in the International Monetary Conference in Paris in 1881, he was a judge and he served as postmaster general in President Arthur's Cabinet from Jan. 5, 1882, until his death in Kenosha on March 3, 1883. He, too, lies in Woodlawn cemetery, Green Bay. He continued in the Senate after Doolittle retired, and served on through the 45th Congress.

La Crosse's one contribution to the senatorial delegation was August Cameron, who came to Washington at the beginning of the 44th Congress and served through the 48th. Also born in New York, he moved to La Crosse in 1857. In addition to his service in the Senate, he served his state as a regent of the University of Wisconsin. He died in La Crosse in 1901 and is buried there in Oak Grove cemetery.

Cameron made a notable change of mind which extended his service in the Senate. He was not a candidate for reelection at the expiration of his first term, but before the next Congress began, Senator Matthew H. Carpenter of Milwaukee died and Cameron entered the race and was elected to fill out his unexpired term.

REFUSED THREE POSTS

Senator John C. Spooner, who refused three Cabinet posts, was first elected from Hudson and began his service in the 49th Congress, serving through the 51st. Then he retired from the Senate and moved to Madison in 1892. He was elected to the Senate again and served from the 55th Congress until his resignation in 1907, during the 60th.

Spooner also served as a regent of the university. He declined appointment as secretary of the interior and as attorney general, offered by President McKinley, and as secretary of state, the highest Cabinet post, offered by President Taft. He also refused appointment to the British International High Commission, offered by McKinley. He is buried at Forest Hill cemetery, Madison.

Other Madison senators were William F. Vilas and the two La Follettes. Vilas was born in Vermont and moved to Madison in 1851. He was a professor of law at the university and served twice as a regent. He directed a revision of the Wisconsin statutes in 1875-78.

Vilas held two cabinet posts, as postmaster general and secretary of the interior, in President Cleveland's administration. He, too, is buried in Forest Hill cemetery. It was Delegate James D. Doty of Ashland who, according to this biography, laid out the capital of Wisconsin and named it Madison. He later served as governor of the Utah territory, and he helped divide Michigan, Wisconsin and Iowa territories.

JONES FOUND GRIEF

George W. Jones of Stoughton, Wisconsin, was the first representative Wisconsin had in the Congress of the United States, serving as territorial delegate in the 54th and part of the 55th Congress. He had considerable grief in his life. Doty contested Jones' election to the 55th Congress, and won.

Then in 1851 Jones was imprisoned at New York for 64 days because he wrote a friendly letter to an old college classmate of his, one Jefferson Davis. Lincoln freed him. Still he lived to the age of 92 and had served as aide-camp to General Henry Dodge in the Black Hawk War, and as senator from Iowa.

Dodge, in addition to his service as delegate from Wisconsin territory and as one of Wisconsin's first senators, was governor of Wisconsin territory.

7,800 MILES OF FEDERAL AID ROAD ARE BUILT IN '28

74,783 Miles of Highways Are Improved During Year, Records Show

Complete statistics for the United States for the calendar year 1928 covering all roads constructed by Federal, State and local agencies, compiled by the Bureau of Public Roads of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, indicate that Federal aid has helped materially in the construction of the higher types of surfacings.

In the year a total of 74,783 miles of highways were improved, says the bureau. With State and Federal funds and the cooperation of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, the States constructed 7,814 miles of roads and 47 miles of bridges in the Federal-aid system. With State funds alone the States improved 21,321 miles of State roads and the counties and other local units constructed 43,331 miles of county and local roads.

Consistent with their superior importance, as shown by traffic surveys, the Federal-aid road improvements were generally of higher type than improvements made on other State roads and on the local roads. As fast as funds become available, high-type surfaces are being constructed by States and counties where traffic requires them. Medium-type pavements, which cost less to construct than the high-type, are built where traffic is not so great and the greater proportion of unsurfaced roads constructed are of local importance.

THREE GENERAL TYPES

For purposes of comparison, the year's total mileage is divided into three general types—high-type surfacing, of which 8,256 miles were constructed in 1928, consisting of bituminous concrete, Portland-cement concrete, sheet asphalt and brick; medium-type, of which 7,617 miles were constructed, these being surfaced with water-bound and bituminous macadam; and low-type, of which 53,899 miles were improved, these being graded and drained earth roads, sand-clay and topsoil and gravel.

In the year, the States, with Federal aid, improved 3,308 miles of Federal-aid roads with high-type pavements and bridges, or 29 per cent of the total; with State funds alone they constructed 3,461 miles, which was nearly 42 per cent of the total of that type built. The counties constructed 1,617 miles of high-type highways, a mileage which was 18 per cent of the total.

Of the medium-type construction, the States, with Federal aid, improved 602 miles of Federal-aid roads, which was almost 7 per cent of the

UNIVERSITY CHEMISTRY EXPERT TO SPEAK HERE

Students of Lawrence college who are interested in chemistry will have an opportunity to hear Prof. Norris F. Hall, head of the department of inorganic chemistry at the University of Wisconsin Thursday evening. The topic of Hall's address will be "The Story of Radium," and he is to speak at an open meeting of Delta Theta, chemistry honor group, in Science hall.

The speaker is one of the foremost authorities on radium in the United States, having been a pupil of Madame Curie, discoverer of radium, at the Sorbonne in Paris. He also was an instructor at Haverford college and Harvard university.

Students carrying a chemistry major in the college have been especially invited to attend the meeting, but any persons sufficiently interested may be present.

With State funds alone they constructed 2,283 miles, or 24 per cent of the total of that type built. The counties improved 4,632 miles of road of this type, which was about 61 per cent of the total mileage of the type built in the year.

The largest mileage of low-type roads was constructed by the counties, 22,232 miles, almost 67 per cent of the total built in the year. The States, with Federal aid, improved 3,308 miles, or more than 6 per cent of the total and with State funds alone they improved 3,461 miles, or 23 per cent of the total of these types built in the year.

Your Question And Its Answer

J.A. Panneck, D.C.
Palmer Chiropractor

QUESTION: Why is it that a person can be well and suddenly gets sick? Has something invaded the body as we walk along the street or sat all unsuspecting at our tasks, if so why have we been free these many months and suddenly gropped by this mysterious foe, disease? Please explain this from a Chiropractic standpoint.—F. J. R.

ANSWER: To the Chiropractor who deals entirely with the cause of disease this is no mystery. He knows that the vital energy which comes from the brain through nerves and upon which every function in the human body is dependent has been interfered with. He knows that some change has taken place in the spine which has produced nerve pressure, all unsuspected by the patient. He has not been attacked by disease as an outside foreign force. A change has occurred within his body and the only way health can be restored is to correct the condition responsible for the disease. This the Chiropractor is trained to do and his splendid record of results is the only justification he has for the public favor which is his.

The Chiropractor knows that health is dependent upon the condition of the spine. He knows that air, food, water, and exercise are necessary to health. He realizes the value of it, but he also knows that all of these things may be available and illness still exist. He knows that each and every organ must receive its quota of vital energy through the nervous system and he knows this cannot be supplied if spinal abnormality causes pressure on nerve trunks.

His business is to correct such spinal defect and thus permit the natural health within to be expressed. He knows one thing more that many Chiropractic patients do not know. He realizes the value of a regular examination of the spine. He knows that the health which has been regained through Chiropractic adjustments can be retained by keeping the spine in perfect condition. Every former patient of every Chiropractor should visit his doctor once each month as a matter of health insurance. It is far better to keep the spine in good condition and thus be assured of abundant health than to neglect this matter until extensive damage has been done. The Slogan of every wise person should be to retain their health.

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

FIVE MAJOR TEAMS REMAIN UNBEATEN; IRISH WON 9 GAMES

Albie Booth of Yale Was Season's Greatest Individual Player

BY ALAN GOULD

Associated Press Staff Editor

NEW YORK—(AP)—The football season is over for 1929 except for a few remaining flourishes in the south and far west.

The season that was brought to an Arctic climax Saturday by Notre Dame's ninth straight triumph, at the expense of the gallant Army team, was in many respects the most remarkable in the history of the great American college sport.

The tumult and the roar from early October to the last day of November was punctuated by the famous Carnegie report on commercialism, by astounding individual performances and long-run thrills despite the new fumble rule, by record-smashing crowds, by an unprecedented epidemic of so-called "breaks" in the big games and by the development of an unusual number of high class teams.

For sheer drama, Yale and Notre Dame topped the list under circumstances of the most extraordinary variety. Trampled by Georgia early in October, the Elis came back to whip Brown, Army and Dartmouth in successive Saturdays with Albie Booth cutting capers across his scorching turf of the Yale bowl such as no one at New Haven had seen in a blue moon.

On successive Saturdays, Booth outplayed two of the game's greatest stars, Red Cagle of the Army and Al Marsters of Dartmouth, to become the most talked and written-about ball carrier since Red Grange, even though the "mighty atom" went into something of an eclipse against Princeton and Harvard.

NOTRE DAME INSPIRED

Knute Rockne, on a sick bed most of the season as the result of an infected leg furnished the inspiration for one of Notre Dame's greatest teams, the first unbeaten Irish array since the famous Four Horsemen dismantled in 1917.

Rockne, stricken just before the Navy game, was able to be on the sidelines for only two of the remaining six games but his boys went out and played with even greater spirit for the ailing "Rock" than they might have for a perfectly healthy coach, directing them from the bench. In next to their last game the star center, Tim McVernan, broke his leg, but the team kept on winning, even though it took a "break" and a one hundred yard dash by the fastest man on the team, Jack Eider, to beat the Army. Notre Dame was among the five major teams that finished their seasons unbeaten and untied.

Purdue's mighty Boilermakers made it two votes for the state of Indiana. Pittsburgh in the east, Tulane in the south and Utah in the Rocky Mountain zone completed the big five of this group, based upon the caliber of opposition and performance over the whole course of the campaign. Notre Dame, Pittsburgh and Purdue established the strongest claims to national championship honors. No one of this trio could possibly be picked out for the main award, however, without the loudest kind of a roar from the others.

Others in the major flight—Tennessee, Texas Christian and St. Mary's of California—showed only a single tie to mar otherwise perfect records. Until their latest games, Tennessee and Texas Christian were up in the very top flight but the volunteers were tied by Kentucky on Thanksgiving day and the Christians held to a 7-7 deadlock by Southern Methodist Saturday. St. Mary's was tied early in the season by California but came along afterward to hang up the most consistent record of any team on the Pacific coast, while the "Big Three," Stanford, Southern California and California, cut each other down.

COLGATE RANKED HIGH

Judged by the strength of their finish, Andy Kerr's powerful Colgate machine ranked with the best in the country, despite an early October setback at the hands of Wisconsin. The Maroon juggernaut smashed Columbia, Syracuse and Brown, three strong teams, on successive Saturdays by the aggregate margin of 89 to 0 with an exhibition of power unsurpassed by Pittsburgh or any other high scoring outfit.

Georgia Tech, after two years at the top in the Southern conference, tumbled with a resounding thud, losing five games altogether and facing the loss of a sixth in meeting Georgia this Saturday. Detroit after a two-year winning streak, was tied by Marquette and later beaten by Oregon State in one of the outstanding upsets of the season. The two-year reign of Illinois in the Big Ten group was ended by the rise of TCU. Texas, Southwest champion, was defeated. Here's how the situation may be summed up by the major areas.

East—Pittsburgh, only major team unbeaten or tied, but with Colgate also showing a clean slate against eastern opposition. Fordham, tied twice, and Davis-Welch of West Virginia, tied once, ranked high, along with Maryland, unchecked in 10 games and facing Maryland this week in the last test.

Missouri Valley—Nebraska champion of the Big Six for the second straight year and Drake repeating in the valley conference.

South—Tulane with best record in Southern conference a shade better than Tennessee, with Chattanooga repeating in the Southern I. A. A.

Southwest—Texas Christian champion of the conference after a season

Amateur Clubs In East Make It Hard For Pros

BY JOHN J. ROYANO

Copyright 1929

NEW YORK—Small clubs throughout this state are closing their doors rather than compete with pseudo-amateur clubs operating with little overhead cost and consequent meager purses.

When it is figured that a bonafide club must pay a license tax ranging from $50 to $75 and pay boxers a minimum of $10 a round, it is clearly proved that a legitimate club cannot cope with others having no taxes to pay and set their own figure on a boxer's services.

Central New York is most affected. Conditions in Syracuse, Rome and Ogdensburg have been such that the local boxing commission has taken a hand and is endeavoring to clean up the situation.

Pseudo-amateur clubs have been running without hindrance from governing bodies and the result so far means that professional boxing in this state has had to give up the ghost in several places.

New York is not the only one suffering from these clubs. Avery Brundage, president of the national boxing association at Chicago dwelled on this evil and urged the members of the N. B. A. to do all in their power to check the inroads on the game and draw a clear line between amateurism and professionalism.

Last year conditions in Connecticut were so bad that the state was suspended from the list of amateur boxing shows, and Buddy Howard, a resident of New Haven, had to compete with Philadelphia to get into the national boxing championship at Boston. Howard won the heavyweight title, but the honor was taken from him when it was proved that he had competed from a city other than his own. Now with boxing under the capable direction and authority of Tom Donohue conditions, in general, have been better, so that amateur shows are strictly such.

Leo Diegel, Hagen and Smith Are Ranking Three Favorites

BY PAUL B. ZIMMERMAN

Associated Press Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Sixty-seven champions of the National Golf Federation today will cast their hopes into the whirlpool of 26-hole medal play, troubled by the knowledge that only thirty-two will come out of the test with the privilege of entering match competition tomorrow for the National Professional Golf championship. The final round will be played Saturday.

To stroke the course in a par 71 will not be sufficient, if pre-tournament indications mean anything. Diegel and Hagen, probably will lead the cards of those chosen few who lead the qualifying round. Any one of a dozen or more of the contenders is apt to finish with the P. G. A. crown resting on his brow, for the event has called together one of the most colorful array of stars in the game.

Leo Diegel, defending champion, with the self-confidence of many victories instilled in him, stands out in the group of those classed as favorites.

Walter Hagen, from whom the Agua Caliente pro wrested the championship last season at the El Estero course, Baltimore, is only slightly less popular as the choice to regain the title which he has held on five previous occasions.

Both the great Hags from Detroit and "Larruping Leo" from Baja, Calif., have been turning in fancy cards for the troublesome course which will be the scene of the tournament. Diegel especially has found it much to his liking, for he holds the record at 85 strokes.

No small amount of trouble is expected by the chief contenders from Horton Smith, youthful professional from the Missouri Ozarks, region, who, in the three open championships he has completed in this winter, has finished first twice and in a tie for second on the other occasion.

What anyone of this trio of leading players is allowed to do in the way of advancing to Saturday's final match depends much on an aggregation whose names are by-words in the great Scottish pastime. These include Johnny Golden, Al Espinosa, Harry Cooper, Al Watrous, Craig Woodin, Bill McNeill, Johnny Farrell, Fred Morrison, Tommy Armour, Gene Sarazen, Henry Cuic and an array of others.

Eighteen holes will be played on the morning card, with the first players stepping up to the tee at 8:30 a. m., the final eighteen of the qualifying round come at noon. Thirty-six holes a day of match play will occupy the remaining five days of the tournament.

What anyone of this trio of leading players is allowed to do in the way of advancing to Saturday's final match depends much on an aggregation whose names are by-words in the great Scottish pastime. These include Johnny Golden, Al Espinosa, Harry Cooper, Al Watrous, Craig Woodin, Bill McNeill, Johnny Farrell, Fred Morrison, Tommy Armour, Gene Sarazen, Henry Cuic and an array of others.

Eighteen holes will be played on the morning card, with the first players stepping up to the tee at 8:30 a. m., the final eighteen of the qualifying round come at noon. Thirty-six holes a day of match play will occupy the remaining five days of the tournament.

Walter Hagen, from whom the Agua Caliente pro wrested the championship last season at the El Estero course, Baltimore, is only slightly less popular as the choice to regain the title which he has held on five previous occasions.

Both the great Hags from Detroit and "Larruping Leo" from Baja, Calif., have been turning in fancy cards for the troublesome course which will be the scene of the tournament. Diegel especially has found it much to his liking, for he holds the record at 85 strokes.

No small amount of trouble is expected by the chief contenders from Horton Smith, youthful professional from the Missouri Ozarks, region, who, in the three open championships he has completed in this winter, has finished first twice and in a tie for second on the other occasion.

Old Time Pitcher Talks About Stolen Signals

BY JOHN L. FOSTER

Copyright 1929

NEW YORK—Smiling Mickey Welch, who was one of the great pitchers of the New York Giants when they won championships back in the eighties, has a few things to say in the argumentation over "stolen signals." There has been considerable discussion of this subject since the world series, when the Athletics were said to have been highly successful in deciphering the signals of the Cubs' batteries.

Mickey is not a disbeliever in the possibility of catching the signs of the opposing batteries, as some players are. He says that he did it, occasionally when he was a pitcher in the days when the Giants were successful against their National League rivals. He explains the usefulness of getting signs in another way than the explanation usually given.

"It is not so necessary," he told this correspondent "to get the height of the ball that is about to be pitched as it is the kind of ball that the pitcher may throw. Almost all batters can hit a high or low ball if it is over the plate. Maybe they hit the high one better than the low one, and perhaps it is the other way round out they can manage to hit it, and if they are lucky they may hit safely."

"The thing to try to inform the batter is whether it is a straight ball or a curve ball. If it is a straight ball with speed, the batter will not change his stance much, but if it is a curve ball, he will step forward and if he is clever with his bat, he will poke the ball to one field or the other where it will do damage."

"Give a right hand batter a curve outside and he will try to put it in right field and if you give a left hand batter a curve on the outside he will probably try to hit to left field and cross the field on the other team. A clever sign detector who can get what the catcher has signaled for, will help a place batter a great deal. If the batter is a right hander he will enable him to hit behind the runner on an outside curve and if he can do that with a man on first base he is sure to advance the runner and may catch the fielders out of position and get a safe hit."

"Do you think the Athletics caught the signal of the Chicago pitchers in the world series?"

"Some of them, maybe, I don't believe they got all of them."

Titan Welch told this correspondent that he demonstrated his pitching instinct. He did not see the last two games in Philadelphia but he heard them described and from his knowledge of pitching skill, he told almost to a dot the kind of balls that Root and Malone were giving to the Athletics.

Italian Monarchs Ready For Historic Visit To Pope Pius At Vatican

Rome—An official communication today announced that the Italian sovereigns would visit Pope Pius at 11 o'clock a. m. Thursday. Their majesties will go to the Vatican with a numerous entourage including the foreign minister, prefect of the palace, the court chaplain and others.

For months, ever since the signing of the Lateran treaty, Feb. 11, which ended the Roman question, the ecclesiastical and governmental play-wrights have been composing the significant drama. For months the papal and the royal courts have been arranging every detail of the procedure and setting.

It will be of intense significance, for this is the first time a king and a queen of United Italy have visited a pope. Ever since 1570, when the pope became the prisoner of the Vatican, no king of Italy has gone to see him or has even seen him.

For days hundreds and thousands of people have been pouring into Rome to see the great spectacle. Availing themselves of the 50 per cent reduction on railroad fares, pilgrims came from as far north as the Alps and as far south as Sicily. The audience for the spectacle will be enormous. It will reach at least 500,000 people.

The drama will be on a tremendous scale, filled with color and pagantry and will consist of five acts. The first, entitled the Journey, embraces the royal procession from the Quirinal palace to the Vatican. The king and queen will go in a carriage of state, drawn by four horses. Other carriages will precede and follow them. Dino Grandi, minister of foreign affairs, will be in one. Leading the procession will be the royal body-guard of mousier cuirassiers.

The procession will follow a route about two miles long. It will cross the Tiber at the Victor Emanuel Bridge, under the shadow of the Castel San Angelo, once a papal fortress. The route will be lined with thousands of troops.

At the boundary line of Vatican City the royal pair will be met by Prince Massimo, postmaster general of the city, and by Commendatore Serafini, governor of the city. The papal gendarmes will give military honors and play the Royal March for the first time in the history of the papal body-guard.

The royal party will proceed by de- grees to the courtyard of San Damaso, where another reception will take place. Prince Ruspoli, master of the papal hospice, will assist the king and the queen to alight from their carriage.

The second act, entitled The Meeting, embraces the encounter between the pope and the sovereigns. It will take place in the papal throne room and will be secret. Only the three personages will be there. The doors will be closed.

Two chairs have been arranged beside the papal throne. The pope will give the sovereigns valuable religious relics. After the meeting, the king's following will be presented to the pope.

The third act, entitled Another Meeting, will take place in the apartments of Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state. The sovereigns will go there immediately after the meeting with the pope. They will be met by Cardinal Gasparri and will present their following. Of more than usual significance should be the meeting of Foreign Affairs Grandi.

The fourth act, entitled Before the Tomb, will be set in St. Peter's basilica. The royal party will descend from the pope's apartments to St. Peter's. There they will visit several chapels and the grotto, and worship before the tomb of St. Peter, under the Baldachino altar in almost the center of the cathedral. They will leave the cathedral by the sacristy. Their carriages will be waiting for them outside.

The fifth act, entitled The Return, consists of the return journey to the Quirinal palace. The same route will be kept at attention. The drama will come to a final close at the Quirinal palace when the artillery troops drawn up in the Quirinal square render their salute.

It is not necessary that the pope return to his visit in person. Although there are two precedents in this, it is considered that for the pope to return the king's visit would put him under obligations to return similar visits from other kings, which would be awkward. Cardinal Gasparri will pay the return visit for the pope.

STOCK DELIVERY HELD UP BY HUGE VOLUME OF SALES

New Owners Need Not Worry Because Certificates Are Not Delivered

BY JOHN A. CRONE Copyright, 1929, By Cons. Press
Wall Street, New York—When William Smith of Iowa City, Ia., on Nov. 10 bought a block of common stock listed on the New York stock exchange, he expected to get his stock certificate within ten days. He is still waiting for that stock certificate, and he is not alone.

Thousands of Smiths all over the world about the same time decided to become partners in America's leading industries and their simultaneous purchases heaped such a mountain of work on banks, brokers, transfers and registrar offices that all securities traded in could not be delivered promptly.

One prominent New York stock exchange firm is waiting for 1,000,000 shares that are being transferred and registered and several big banks are similarly awaiting about 500,000 shares each. Some leading banks and trust companies say their transfer and registrar departments are up to the minute with their work. This is true also of some corporations that transfer their own shares. Other banks, trust companies and corporations, however, are more than a week behind despite day, night, Sunday and holiday labor.

NO NEED TO WORRY

Ordinarily the delivery of stock in Philadelphia, from the time the buyer places his order there until he receives the stock in that city, requires a week. Such a transaction is not unusual, usually takes about ten days. On the Pacific coast this transaction necessitates two weeks. Since these schedules are not being enforced—and cannot be at the present—the holder of a broker's receipt or a cancelled check evidencing payment for shares need not worry because the stock certificate has not been delivered.

Between Oct. 24 and Nov. 13—the period of heavy trading and violent market declines—comparatively little stock was transferred to customers. Brokers put all of their transfer orders to work in cashiers' cages so all securities sold could be moved and all securities purchased could be gathered in. The clearing of securities then was more important than the transfer thereof.

Thousands of margin speculators, who had only a remnant of stock left after the crash, ordered the remnant delivered rather than sell it at the exceedingly low prices prevailing. Then came the greatest wave of odd-lot or less than one hundred share lot security buying in the history of New York Central, between Oct. 24 and Nov. 24 it is said 50 per cent more stock certificates than it normally issues in such a period. This unusual amount of work was not made easier by the payment of the regular quarterly dividend on Nov. 1 and the issuance of $35,669,800 of the latter.

The pressure put on transfer offices is illustrated by the experience of New York Central, between Oct. 24 and Nov. 24 it is said 50 per cent more stock certificates than it normally issues in such a period. This unusual amount of work was not made easier by the payment of the regular quarterly dividend on Nov. 1 and the issuance of $35,669,800 of the latter.

When trading simmered down, brokers dumped mountains of security delivery work on the 69 transfer and registrar offices located in Manhattan. These offices range from trust companies, acting as transfer or registrar agent for several hundred of corporations, to offices such as United States Steel, General Motors, Consolidated Gas, American Telephone and Telegraph, New York Central and other companies that transfer their own securities.

Every corporation that lists securities on the New York stock exchange, under penalty of having such securities taken off the exchange, must maintain both transfer and registrar agencies in Manhattan. Furthermore the registrar and transfer agent cannot be the same person or institution because the former acts as a check against the latter.

The pressure put on transfer offices is illustrated by the experience of New York Central, between Oct. 24 and Nov. 24 it is said 50 per cent more stock certificates than it normally issues in such a period. This unusual amount of work was not made easier by the payment of the regular quarterly dividend on Nov. 1 and the issuance of $35,669,800 of the latter.

DELIVERIES FASTER

Although the New York stock transfer agents association makes no comment about the general delivery situation, individuals say most of the deliveries now are being made within 48 hours after the stock has been received. The association, after a conference with the New York stock exchange in March, 1928, when a jam occurred in transfer offices, ordered additions to clerical forces to speed up work then. These additional clerks, despite planning and feverish work, were not able to overcome all contingencies. "Open traders" held up transfers. Not one share of a prominent trust company was transferred for two weeks, because the supply of certificates ran out and more had to be printed.

Perhaps the thousands of Smiths might be more patient if they knew the amount of work entailed in getting shares into their hands. After Smith orders ten shares of XYZ stock, through the New York office, buys the stock on the floor of the exchange from an odd-lot dealer. The odd-lot dealer sends a 100-share lot up to the transfer office to be broke up, so 10 shares may be delivered to Smith's broker.

After Smith's broker gets the 10 shares, the stock certificate must again be sent to the transfer office. All of this sending back and forth to transfer offices must be done either by registered mail or messenger, for each delivery requires a receipt.

When the messenger from Smith's broker's office arrives at the transfer office, his delivered securities are counted and checked and the messenger is given a receipt. The old stock—that is, the ten shares in the name of Smith's broker—is laid out and the new stock is put alongside of it. On the new certificate is printed, cancelled or written the name of William Smith and the number of shares—in this instance ten—he owns.

Many transactions The new stock or Smith certificate then is checked against the certificate bearing the name of Smith's broker. The new stock then is put on a transfer sheet which is checked against the old transfer sheet containing Smith's broker's certificate. When both the old and new stock balances, it is posted, the former being credited and the latter debited.

The new stock then goes over to the stenol room. A stencil is made out of William Smith, for naturally he wants all dividends, extra dividends, rights, stock dividends, etc., that may accrue to him as owner of ten shares of XYZ stock. The old stencil—that made out to Smith's broker—is pulled out and destroyed.

Then both the old and new stock certificates are sent out to the registrar's office, which gives a receipt for them to the messenger from the transfer office. The registrar after checking the old and new stock, to be sure that no more shares are being issued than authorized by the company's constitution and by-laws or amendments, cancels the old certificate and signs the new certificate. Both certificates go back to the transfer office, which in turn gives them to the messenger from Smith's broker, who upon presentation of the receipt, gives him.

At the broker's office the number of shares, and name of owner are duly recorded. William Smith's stock certificate then is placed in the registered mail. When he gives this certificate a little bit later, he should appreciate all the steps necessary to transfer and registration and not worry because his certificate is not delivered to him almost overnight.

10-mile Speed Law Must Be Observed, However, Chief Warns

SHIPPING GROUP OF CENTER VALLEY HAS REMARKABLE RECORD

Association Benefitted Many Farmers by Securing Freight Rate Drop

BY W. F. WINSEY

Center Valley—For years of substantial service to the community, number of members, annual business reducing the cost of handling livestock between the farmer and the market, maintaining the local prices of livestock for all farmers, preventing local competition in selling, and for reducing the freight charges on mixed cars of livestock for local shippers, the Central Valley Cooperative Live Stock Shipping association is outstanding in Wisconsin.

In its former year the association did business that totaled $73,000 and has an average of approximately $50,000 yearly since its organization. Two hundred members are now taking advantage of the cooperative shipping inducements offered by the association.

Disturbed by the injustice of transportation companies charging the maximum freight rate on mixed cars of livestock, the association, after considerable discussion, several years ago set out to get the minimum rate on such cars. The struggle that followed the discussion took George Wehning, shipping manager, to Chicago several times where he took up the injustice of the freight rate discrimination with commission men and railway officials. Soon after his heavy traffic must go over the Wisconsin bridge. The bridge will be watched by police.

The Central Valley Cooperative Livestock Shipping Association was organized in 1917 as an offshoot of the American Society of Equity. As the new born concern had no local transportation facilities, it shipped its livestock out of Black Creek for a few years or until the Wisconsin Northern Railroad was built. John Schwamer was the first president of the association, Gust Schroeder the first secretary and treasurer, and George Wehning the first manager of shipping. The present officers are Fred Fiested, president, Gus Sedo, secretary and treasurer, and Leo Deffering, shipping manager.

With respect to the leadership, Senator McNary of Oregon probably will become assistant leader while Senator Watson of Indiana will retain charge of the affairs of the majority party.

Mr. Watson was not originally a Hoover man, having made a vigorous fight against the new bureau of commerce in the Indiana primaries. Representing also as in the old guard in the Republican party, it has been difficult for the Hooverites to leave upon the Watson leadership with ease. The Indiana senator on the other hand is personally popular in the senate and is seniority rule is respected by both parties, so that any move to oust Mr. Watson from the leadership would only result in more ill feeling inside the senate and would hardly produce the desired harmony which is necessary in order to get action on the Hoover legislative program.

HAS TOUGH JOB

As the majority leader Mr. Watson has a tough job to follow the wishes of the White House. In fact there is no man in the senate who is more flexible than "Jim" Watson. But when it comes to bringing about harmony as between the western "hard" and the old guard, and as between the element in the Hoover camp, even the redoubtable Senator Watson is two for the task. He was not in the Hoover group in the senate and his little revolt and subsequent withdrawal from this was part of the strategy whereby the Hoover senators were to have their opportunity to bring about a compromise with the western senators. The management of committee assignments is only a part of the task of a majority leader. Watson has a tough job to do in the senate and is

COMMITTEE TO REVIEW HIGH SCHOOL "PROBLEM"

Madison—(AP)—All persons interested in the state high school "situation" are invited to appear before the legislature's interim committee on education here Dec. 17 and 18, said an announcement from the committee today.

After a preliminary survey the committee has reached the conclusion that the high school situation is perhaps the most pressing of all educational problems confronting the state and decided to conduct the first hearings on this subject.

All facts and suggestions, which are to be related to a particular district in the state as a whole will be welcome, the committee announcement said. The committee is particularly interested in financial aspects of the high school work "including tax rates, tuition charges, effects of the detachment law and necessity for increasing state aid." Under the detachment law, parts of high school district exerts have been detaching themselves from the districts and thereby withdrawing financial support so needed in many northern districts. A bill for reappropriation of a different scale of the state high school aid, was defeated in the last legislature.

THE LUXURY HUSBAND

CHAPTER 18 FAMILY

SEVERAL weeks later Barbara's Uncle Henry, otherwise Henry James Vandaveer Landon, was holding an informal court. He was entitled to do so, for he was the oldest and wealthiest member of the Landon family, being several times a millionaire.

The others, secretly hoping that some day some portion of his millions might come their way, came at his bidding, to flatter, to cringe, to obey—all except Barbara. She defied her Uncle Henry and she loved him.

"Barbara," he exclaimed. "I never thought you'd marry a penniless fellow of no social standing whatsoever. I had thought, until now, that John had done wisely in leaving you in full control of your money. If you had to get married abroad, you might at least have bought a duke or prince when you were about it."

"I don't care to buy a husband, thanks," Barbara retorted furiously. "Great heavens! What else have you done? You can't tell me that you haven't bought this fellow when you pay all his bills and house and feed him besides. I think that you might have chosen one who would have brought more credit to the family."

"Barbara was flaming by this time. 'Stop it, Uncle Henry, or I'll hit you,' she cried angrily. 'You don't understand Ray. He doesn't intend to live off me. He's going to work.'"

"At what?" blurted.

"Why, he's trying to put some of his money across."

"Bah," said her uncle with increased vigor. "How far does he think he'll get at that? Anyhow, what does he intend doing in the meantime?"

"He—the talks of getting a position in an orchestra," Barbara conceded reluctantly.

"Do you mean that he intends to get a job blowing that abominable saxophone of his?" Mr. Lando fairly shouted. "Fine thing for us to have a relative of ours playing in some cheap jazz band! You can't tell me honestly, Barbara, that you think it suitable?"

No, Barbara had to confess that she did not. But he might be persuaded into doing something else, she suggested. Her Uncle Henry might place him in his own office.

"Well, don't think I've thought of that!" the older man demanded irritably. "I put it up to him the second day you both returned home. He was in his room blowing on that damned instrument of his—and instead of stopping when I came in, he had the nerve to say, 'Wait a moment, will you? I want to finish working out this tune that's running through my head.'"

"I sat there for some minutes while he made the most atrocious sounds I've ever heard. Finally I said, 'Shut up, young fellow. I haven't time to sit here all day listening to you.' He put aside his saxophone at that and said, 'I see you aren't fond of music! We didn't seem to hit it off after that. I offered him a job, but he told me firmly that he hadn't any interest in stocks and shares and that he intended to stick to his profession.'"

"Preposterous!" said Mrs. Ray who had expectations.

"About!" I never heard anything like it," said Mrs. T. Lawrence, who had received a lawyer's letter from her dressmaker that morning and was wondering how to brush the subject to dear Uncle Henry.

"These musical fellows never get anywhere," remarked George Landon, the youngest brother and owner of a canning factory. "I went through college with one who practiced hours a day on his piano and now the poor goof isn't earning one-eighth of what I am."

"It isn't necessary for Ray to make money," Barbara pointed out. "But he's crazy wit—the notion of being independent. Maybe I could talk him into going in with you, Uncle Henry. At least I can try."

"Well, you can tell him my offer still holds good," said Henry James Vandaveer Landon magnanimously.

She picked upon the hour before bedtime, when she was wont to sit curled on his knees. She had put on her daintiest negligee, a thing of chiffon and lace that had no warmth whatsoever unless you could call a ruffle of ostrich feathers some protection for the throat—a garment that intrigued Ray completely because it was so entirely feminine and unnecessary.

She perched herself on his knees, as usual, but there was a distrustful air about her and she frowned.

He saw that something had upset her and finally inquired: "What's the matter, Barbara?"

It took him quite a while to persuade her to tell him and, when she did, she had the air of conferring a great favor.

"You've offended my Uncle Henry."

"Do you mean because I refused a place in his office? It was mighty kind of him, but, you know, that it isn't in my line."

"But I thought you wanted to be independent?"

He set his teeth grimly.

"You bet I do!"

He did not add that, after three years of knocking around, he felt like a fish out of water in this elaborate establishment that his wife maintained. It was absurd—but knowing that in no way did he contribute to its upkeep, he felt that it was an impertinence on his part even to summon the butler for a glass of ice water. He half wanted to apologize to the man and hold the door open for him to pass out again.

"I tried out for two orchestras to day," he remarked sulkily.

She clung closer to him. He knew the perfume on her hair.

"But I don't want you to go into a stupid old jazz band, Ray. I want you to go in with my Uncle Henry. Wouldn't you try it for a time, if only to please me?"

His arms tightened around her while he tried to argue with her gently.

"But I wouldn't be any use in business. I'd make a fool of myself. I'm on in college I hadn't any lead figures."

"You could try," she pouted. "You would try if you loved me."

"I do love you, Barbara."

"Then if that's the truth you'd stop all this nonsense about playing in a jazz band. You've no idea how humiliated it makes me feel. My friends and friends laugh at it—I know they do. And you must see that it is absurd yourself. I tell you I'll make me hate you, Ray, if you go on being so stubborn!"

They continued the argument long into the night and in the end, as she had on a similar occasion, she got her way.

"Very well, Barbara. I'll try it out—since you're so set on it. But I warn you that I'll be worse than Leonardo Higgins, a widowed cousin who had expectations."

They continued the argument long into the night and in the end, as she had on a similar occasion, she got her way.

"Very well, Barbara. I'll try it out—since you're so set on it. But I warn you that I'll be worse than Leonardo Higgins, a widowed cousin who had expectations."

"About!" I never heard anything like it," said Mrs. T. Lawrence, who had received a lawyer's letter from her dressmaker that morning and was wondering how to brush the subject to dear Uncle Henry.

"These musical fellows never get anywhere," remarked George Landon, the youngest brother and owner of a canning factory. "I went through college with one who practiced hours a day on his piano and now the poor goof isn't earning one-eighth of what I am."

"It isn't necessary for Ray to make money," Barbara pointed out. "But he's crazy wit—the notion of being independent. Maybe I could talk him into going in with you, Uncle Henry. At least I can try."

"Well, you can tell him my offer still holds good," said Henry James Vandaveer Landon magnanimously.

She picked upon the hour before bedtime, when she was wont to sit curled on his knees. She had put on her daintiest negligee, a thing of chiffon and lace that had no warmth whatsoever unless you could call a ruffle of ostrich feathers some protection for the throat—a garment that intrigued Ray completely because it was so entirely feminine and unnecessary.

She perched herself on his knees, as usual, but there was a distrustful air about her and she frowned.

He saw that something had upset her and finally inquired: "What's the matter, Barbara?"

It took him quite a while to persuade her to tell him and, when she did, she had the air of conferring a great favor.

"You've offended my Uncle Henry."

"Do you mean because I refused a place in his office? It was mighty kind of him, but, you know, that it isn't in my line."

"But I thought you wanted to be independent?"

He set his teeth grimly.

"You bet I do!"

He did not add that, after three years of knocking around, he felt like a fish out of water in this elaborate establishment that his wife maintained. It was absurd—but knowing that in no way did he contribute to its upkeep, he felt that it was an impertinence on his part even to summon the butler for a glass of ice water. He half wanted to apologize to the man and hold the door open for him to pass out again.

"I tried out for two orchestras to day," he remarked sulkily.

She clung closer to him. He knew the perfume on her hair.

"But I don't want you to go into a stupid old jazz band, Ray. I want you to go in with my Uncle Henry. Wouldn't you try it for a time, if only to please me?"

His arms tightened around her while he tried to argue with her gently.

"But I wouldn't be any use in business. I'd make a fool of myself. I'm on in college I hadn't any lead figures."

"You could try," she pouted. "You would try if you loved me."

"I do love you, Barbara."

"Then if that's the truth you'd stop all this nonsense about playing in a jazz band. You've no idea how humiliated it makes me feel. My friends and friends laugh at it—I know they do. And you must see that it is absurd yourself. I tell you I'll make me hate you, Ray, if you go on being so stubborn!"

They continued the argument long into the night and in the end, as she had on a similar occasion, she got her way.

REPORT TELLS OF DRIVES TO BETTER DAIRY PRODUCTS

Butter Sales Frauds, Other Irregularities Are Uncovered

BY RUBY A. BLACK
(Washington Correspondent of the Post-Crescent)

Washington—Campaigns to improve the dairy products sold in interstate commerce and the milk and cream imported are described in the annual report of the pure food authorities of the United States Department of Agriculture, made public Friday.

Frauds in the sale of butter and "extremely unsatisfactory conditions" in one of the principal cheese producing sections were brought to light by the food, drug, and insecticide administration, which enforced the pure food laws, while an effective campaign to prevent the importation of sub-standard milk and cream is described.

Of the difficulties in the butter and cheese industries the report says: "Routine inspection of creameries showed that more rather than less high-moisture and short-weight butters were shipped in interstate commerce during the fiscal year 1928-29. Most of the butter seized was brought into compliance with the law by the owners under court supervision after decrees had been entered.

"Constant supervision by Federal and local authorities still seems to be necessary to prevent fraud in the sale of butter.

"The traffic in cheese also has called for a good deal of attention under the food and drug act, as many of the samples examined proved to be high moisture and low in fat, or both.

Extremely unsatisfactory conditions in the cheese industry in one of the principal producing sections were brought to light by a survey early in the year.

REPORT PROPAGANDA
"Propaganda favoring the sale of 'soft' cheese had created a demand for high-moisture cheese, making it difficult for manufacturers of a legal product to compete with the cheaper one.

"An active campaign to relieve this situation resulted in several seizures of high-moisture, low-fat cheese, most of which, in accordance with the procedure prescribed by the law, was ultimately released to the shippers, who turned it over to processors to be made into processed cheese.

Sanitary inspections of Canadian dairy farms and shipping plants, and inspection of milk and cream for importation were the chief methods used in preventing the importation of impure milk, under the terms of the measure introduced by Irvine L. Lennox, during his last year as Senator from Wisconsin.

Of the inspections made of samples of milk offered for import, more than 13 per cent were found to contain impurities in excess of the limit prescribed by the law. The act, which was signed by President Hoover, requires that their import permits be suspended if necessary. Of 195 shippers whose permits were withdrawn, 87 were later reinstated when they proved compliance with the law.

"A total of 799 visits were made to the larger permit holders operating plants and dairies. Inspections were made of dairy farms, and of the product of 54 of these dairy farms, which restrictions were lifted later in the case of 27 of the farms where sanitary conditions had been so improved as to satisfy this course.

EMBARGO IS USED
Embargoes were placed on the product of 54 of these dairy farms, which restrictions were lifted later in the case of 27 of the farms where sanitary conditions had been so improved as to satisfy this course.

There has been a marked improvement in the sanitary conditions at creameries and dairies during the fiscal year over those found to prevail during the preceding year," the report says.

"An immediate effect of the rigid application of the terms of the import milk act was to curtail the volume of importations. Although figures are not available for the entire year, it is safe to assume that more than 20,000 cans of milk or cream were excluded from entry for such infractions of the law as high bacteria content, high temperature, improper tagging, and production under insanitary conditions.

"Another effect of the enforcement of the act, although more indirect, was the exclusion of large quantities of milk and cream products handled by farmers and establishments which would not meet the demands of the act and were not able to qualify to the extent of obtaining a permit.

"Import statistics for the last 10 years show that there had been a steady increase of importations of Canadian-produced milk into the United States from 1919 to 1927, but these figures decline in 1928 and suffered a still greater decline in 1929. "While all of this reduction in imports is not attributable to the requirements of the Federal import milk act, there is no doubt that this measure was directly responsible for some of the decrease."

CHARGES MARINES USED AGAINST LABOR UNIONS

Washington—(AP)—Prof. John Dewey, president of the People's lobby, has announced that the organization will seek an investigation by the secretary of state into charges that the marines have been used in Nicaragua "to prevent organization of labor unions."

"Contending that the use of United States marines in Nicaragua to prevent organization of labor unions is a logical sequence to the illegal use of those marines to make Nicaragua safe for American exploitation," Professor Dewey said the recent deportation from there of a labor organizer, "by United States marines" had "served the useful purpose of making the object of American intervention clear to all Central and South American countries."

"Salomon de la Selva, the labor organizer to whom Dewey referred, was reported to have been in a plot to assassinate the president of Nicaragua.

EDUCATION OBJECT OF U. W. RADIO STATION

Madison—(AP)—Education by radio is the object around operation of WEA, University of Wisconsin station, and second oldest in the nation, preceded only by KDKA, Pittsburgh.

Cooperating with the university in its educational extension service, various state departments are joining in programs.

A weekly health hour is to be broadcast under direction of the state board of health, while the state department of public instruction is presenting a series of talks pertaining to state educational matters. Plans are being made to extend the education service for schoolroom talks by radio. The state conservation commission is featuring a series on Wisconsin wild life.

In the university, various departments are broadcasting educational and informational programs, and the university student paper, is fostering student broadcasts.

Plans are being made to provide supplementary instruction by radio in lower grades of public schools. The project is being worked out by Prof. H. L. Ewbank, of the speech department, and John Guy Fowling, professor of education.

FIVE MEMBERS OF HOUSES ARE FACING SEATING CONTESTS

Three Election Committees Will Decide Issues, Starting Next Week

Washington—(AP)—Five representatives face vigorous contests over their seats in the house despite the fact that they have been serving officially since the beginning of the special session.

They were seated following receipt by William Tyler Page, house clerk, of certificates of election from the state secretaries, but throughout their tenure, all attorneys have been working on the cases of both contestants and contestees and records are now complete and in the hands of Mr. Page.

Three elections committees will be organized next week to hear the contests after the regular session convenes Monday. They will go into the records and probably will hold open hearings.

With the exception of the contest over the seat held by Representative Ruth Bryan Owen, Democrat, of the fourth Florida district, the contests deal with disputes over the election returns.

W. C. Lawson, Republican candidate for the Florida seat, charges Mrs. Owen lost her citizenship when she married a British army officer. Mrs. Owen returned to the United States after her husband died and claims to have lived here a sufficient time to have regained her citizenship and thus be eligible for her seat.

Former Representative Harry M. Wurzbach, Republican, has been persistent in his attack on the seating of Representative Augustus M. Clossky, Democrat, of the fourteenth Texas district. He has declined to relinquish his office in the house of representatives and is understood to have charged irregularities in Texas, elections. Clossky is a former mayor of San Antonio, seat of Bexar-co.

John Phillip Hill is attempting to unseat Representative Vincent L. Palmisano, Democrat, of the third Maryland district.

Jacob L. Milligan, Democrat, of the third Missouri district, is stoutly defending his claim to his seat against H. E. Lawrence.

Ralph E. Updike, defeated Republican of the seventh Indiana district, is contesting the seating of Louis Ludlow, Democrat.

After the committees have completed their investigations into the cases they will draft reports to be submitted to the house for disposition. Then it will be decided whether the five holding the seats shall keep them.

If a contest succeeds in unseating a contestee, both will receive salaries for service up to the time of financial action, but if the contest fails to prove his claims, he will not receive any compensation other than the specified amount which the house, however, provides for defraying the cost of his contests.

RADIO INDUSTRY WILLING TO HELP LABOR SITUATION

Special Meeting of Board of Directors Is Called for This Week

BY ROBERT MACK
Copyright, 1929, by Cons. Press

Washington—President Hoover's program for stabilizing the general industrial situation of the nation finds the radio industry ready and willing to do its part.

Pursuant to the president's plea, the Radio Manufacturers association, embracing in its membership practically all of the set and accessory manufacturers, has called a special meeting of its board of directors for this week. Although the latest of America's industries, radio has hopped into the front line in record-breaking time and now borders on the select billion-dollar-a-year class. Consequently it is no small factor in the nation's industrial line-up.

The part of the radio industry, naturally, will be that of merchandising. Despite the recent recession in sales, which occurred coincident with the stock market crash, leaders in the industry believe 1929 will be another record-smashing year, and that 1930 will see a continued upward curve in sales.

H. B. Richmond, president of the association, announces that he has called the directors' meeting for December 6 and 7 at Briarcliff Lodge, New York. The industry's leaders, he said, will consider measures to cooperate in the industrial program of President Hoover. It also will be represented at the meeting called by the chamber of commerce of the United States at Washington just prior to its own directors' meeting.

The Briarcliff conference will consider the whole subject of merchandising. Recent surveys of the radio market will be gone into with a view of estimating sales of sets and other equipment for the coming year.

SALES ON UPGRADE
"These surveys," said Mr. Richmond, "indicate that radio sales fell off somewhat during the last fortnight in October coincident with the stock market slump, but now are on the upgrade in the normal busy sales season this time of the year."

A very few manufacturers reduced prices, but a large majority, with the recent increase in radio sales, the outlook is encouraging and for many manufacturers 1929 sales will be much ahead of last year.

Six of the largest radio manufacturers have reduced the retail prices of their sets in recent weeks. The average price reduction was 22 per cent. It was expected that sales would increase greatly as a result, but preliminary figures indicate that this has not been the case for all of the manufacturers. The normal holiday season demand, however, is making up for the ground lost as a result of the stock market depression.

Two of the leading set manufacturers, Atwater-Kent and Grigsby-Grumow, report unusually large volume of sales. The former company states that it is enjoying one of the most successful seasons in its history. Grigsby-Grumow recently discontinued 1929 production to prepare for the 1930 season, but will force to reopen a portion of its Chicago plant, because of the demand of dealers for more merchandise to meet the peak holiday business.

A preliminary survey of the commerce department on retail sales of radio equipment for the third quarter, based on reports from 6,237 dealers, showed an increase of 14 per cent over the same quarter of last year.

UNCLE SAM OFFERS TO TEACH ISOLATED PUPILS

Washington—(AP)—Uncle Sam is ready to take on the task of playing schoolmaster to children cut off from civilization.

The annual report of the secretary of the interior, issued today, tells of a new correspondence course for children living on army navy, light house, or other federal reservations where schooling facilities are not available.

"If desired by school officials of states, it is intended that such courses will be made available for the instruction of children in isolated communities, especially in communities where the small number of children makes it inadvisable to establish regular schools," the report said.

Jury Returns Verdict of Acquittal in Killing of General Vidal

Mexico City—(AP)—Senora Maria Teresa Landu de Vidal was a free woman once more today after acquittal in criminal court on charges of murdering her husband, General Vidal.

Senora de Vidal was "Miss Mexico" at a recent Galveston beauty contest. An hour after receiving the verdict of acquittal, the trial attracted considerable attention throughout Mexico, and the closing arguments, which lasted ten hours, were broadcast by radio.

Senora de Vidal, a pretty, youthful brunette, admitted she shot her husband when she saw in a newspaper he had been charged with bigamy by a wife in Vera Cruz who had borne him several children. She did not know of this first wife, whom he had not divorced.

The first wife testified she had lived happily with General Vidal until about a year ago when he met "Miss Mexico" and disappeared. She traced him to Mexico City and filed bigamy charges against him.

"Miss Mexico" told interviewers she would become a nun and never marry again in the event of her acquittal. "He is the only man I ever loved," she said.

Madison—(AP)—Judge Walter C. Lindley, Danville, Ill., U. S. district judge for eastern Illinois, has been assigned to open the December term of U. S. district court here Dec. 10 in place of Judge Claude Z. Luse, who is ill.

Based on these reports, from only a handful of the dealers in the country, it is estimated, the gross radio sales for the quarter amounted to some $138,000,000. On this same basis, it was estimated the gross sales for the first quarter of the year aggregated $132,000,000 and for the second quarter $92,000,000.

GOVERNMENT BOND SECURITY USUALLY IS CREDIT ALONE

Weaker Countries Sometimes Pledge Certain Assets or Income

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES
Copyright, 1929, by Cons. Press

New York—Security as applied to government bonds is an entirely different matter from security as applied to corporate loans. As a rule the guarantee of payment, principal and interest, to the holder of a government bond is the credit of the government, that is to say its ability and willingness to pay.

It is the world of the United States that makes its obligations good, not any mortgages or lien of any kind. The same is true of the bonds of the United Kingdom of France and of most established governments. The exceptions are found in the more recently formed states of southeastern Europe, of those in Central and South America. When these weaker countries, that is weaker financially, desire to float a loan they do pledge sometimes certain assets and sometimes the income from certain revenues for the service of the loan.

This gives the investor confidence as it is intended to do but there are generally difficulties in the way of enforcing the lien in the event the debtor nation defaults. Some of the provisions for assuring payment are elaborate in the extreme. A good example may be found in the dollar bonds of the Republic of Salvador.

These are secured by a first lien on seventy per cent of the customs revenues. These revenues are collected in United States gold and paid directly to the representative of the fiscal agent of loan in Salvador to be remitted to New York monthly. If seventy per cent of the customs revenues are insufficient for the service of the loan the representative of the bondholders has a right to require payment of such additional percentage as shall cover the deficiency. Other precautions are taken against any interruptions of interest payments. As a matter of fact the revenues in this case are ten times interest and sinking fund charges on the bond so that there never has been any occasion to invoke these clauses and the rating of the bonds depends in the last analysis on the general credit of the country itself.

CHARGE MENASHA MAN DROVE CAR TOO FAST

Harvey Knorr, route 1, Menasha, was arrested Saturday afternoon by Gus Hersekorn, motorcycle officer, on a charge of speeding 40 miles an hour on S. Cherry-st. Knorr is to appear in municipal court before Judge Theodore Berg Monday afternoon to answer charges.

Liège, Belgium—Residents of Liège care more for the scenic beauties of the Ourthe river than for potential hydro-electric power and are raising a monument to the glory of the picturesque stream as a protest against a projected power plant and accompanying factories.

ENTIRE NATION IS BACKING HOOVER'S EXPANSION PLANS

Growing Prosperity and Confidence Shown Everywhere in Country

A chorus of optimism, expressed in terms of production, billions of available dollars, needed man power, bushels to the acre, bank deposits and orders for goods, is drowning out all predictions of business depression based on untidiness and precedent.

From every section of the nation come cold, confident facts, gathered by representatives of the Post-Crescent and NEA Service, world's largest newspaper service organization, from widely scattered leaders of industry, banking and merchandising. These statements show that trade, commerce and agriculture already are squarely behind President Hoover's aggressive program of expansion and advancement.

Manufacturers, some of whom have felt a slight slump during recent months, are optimistic regarding the immediate future. Alvin C. Taylor, chairman of the finance committee, U. S. Steel Corporation, said, "We have every reason for confidence in the present situation, and there is no reason for a slackening in employment." George Laughlin, Pittsburg steel manufacturer, also said there would be no reduction of employment, nor of wages.

"DEVELOPMENTS"

"Interest rates have declined, and the capital released must find its way into constructive developments," according to James D. Tew, president of the B. F. Goodrich Co., Akron, O. Views of the moving picture industry are reflected in the statement of Louis B. Mayer, vice president of Goldwyn-Mayer, that "American prosperity never has been safer than it is today."

From Denver, Col., Charles C. Gates, president of the Gates Rubber Co., reported that he was unable to recognize any unfavorable trend in business or material decrease in volume of sales. Nor has there been any effect on business of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co., according to its vice president, H. T. Herr. George F. Houston, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, reported enough work to keep his concern operating at capacity for several months.

AGRICULTURE LOOKS UP

The farmer's condition is showing a decided improvement, according to Alexander Legge, chairman of the Federal Farm Board and formerly head of the International Harvester Co. "All of us are hoping the stock market crisis will not have a lasting effect on industry. I do not believe the farmers will get panicky, as they are only indirectly affected. They believe prices of agricultural products are too low, but they are not as bad as they have been at times." Crops around Denver are far ahead of many previous years, said Herbert S. Sands, president of the Denver Chamber of Commerce. Manufacturing and retail selling also show an increase over the same period last year, he said.

"We are letting the air out of the balloon before its burst," said State Senator Julien Hyer, of Fort Worth, Tex., a member of the governor's committee on cotton loans. "With increased construction and intensified farming, we will soon be on a sounder basis." COTTON CROP IS GOOD The section about Memphis, Tenn., considered by itself, never was in a better condition, in the opinion of John J. Heilm, vice president of the Union Planters' National Bank. "It is hard to say to what extent our unusual prosperity may be limited by outside conditions," he said. "There are some cancellations of lumber, raw furs and other materials sent from this territory to the north and east for manufacture. However, we have a good cotton crop, at a good price, and cotton is the principal money product of this section."

While in the east money comes out of banks, it comes out of the ground in agricultural districts. J. P. Henican, president of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange, pointed out, "Cotton and wheat farmers have been getting good prices for their crops, and I am looking for an era of prosperity for the future," he declared. A former governor of Louisiana, who now is a prominent farmer, John M. Parker, also sees encouraging prospects for his state. "Our cotton farmers and sugar manufacturers are doing well. A new variety of cane has increased the output on all Louisiana plantations at least 35 per cent. Our rice farmers, too, have good crops."

INDUSTRY FOUND STRONG Steel and oil men, as well as business leaders in mining sections, report encouraging trends. From Salt Lake City, Louis S. Cates, vice president of the Utah Copper Co., called absurd any fears that the stock market break will have any permanent depressing effect on business. "Conditions are fundamentally sound, and industry is in a very strong position," he declared. J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburg Coal Co., said, "Our production is actually 10 per cent greater than it was this time last year. Plants and mills take the greater part of our coal. There is no curtailment, no recession. Business is going ahead on a good basis."

The mining outlook in Colorado is the best in recent years, in the opinion of Edward J. Vetter, of Denver, president of the Colorado Manufacturers' and Merchants' Association. Another Denver industrial leader, E. T. Wilson, chairman of the board of Continental Oil Co., said that no alarm was being felt over the slight delay in readjustment to new conditions.

SAYS BUSINESS IS UNHURT

"The situation is purely psychological," declared W. T. McFarland, Cleveland, president of the Standard Oil Co., of Ohio. "There is no connection between the Wall Street situation and general business. Fundamentally, business will not be affected."

The mail order business is very satisfactory, according to Julius Ro-enwald, chairman of the board of Sears Roebuck and Co., Chicago, which has ten mail order plants scattered about the country. "Generally speaking," he said, "business is ahead of last year. We have a largely increased business and a lower inventory than a year ago."

A significant observation came from William King, of Memphis, vice president of the W. R. Moore Dry Goods Co., wholesalers: "Our business has been better in every month of this year than it was in the corresponding month of last year. Collections are excellent; in October we collected 52 per cent of all accounts outstanding. The people in our territory are generally in a prosperous condition. They have paid off their obligations and have money to spend. Bank deposits are above normal."

BUILDING DRIVE LAUNCHED

From all over the nation, following the suggestions at President Hoover's conference, a concerted drive toward new construction will decrease unemployment.

According to Philip H. Alston, president of the Atlanta, Ga., Chamber of Commerce, Atlanta's biggest building program is under way. Ernest T. Trigg, of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce, reported that $50,000,000 worth of new buildings will be erected there within the next 18 months. New building programs are being launched by several Oregon cities. Fort Worth, Tex., will spend $3,000,000 this winter. Highway and street construction and improvement throughout the country will mean an outlay of more than $2,200,000,000 in 1930, and railroads will spend about $800,000,000, an increase of nearly $123,000,000 over last year.

BANKERS SEE STABILITY

Conservative predictions of continued business stability were made by leading bankers.

"Conditions are reasonably good," declared A. E. Brown, president of the Farmers Deposit National Bank of Pittsburgh, Pa. "Confidence that business is to become steadily better, not worse, has been restored in the Pittsburgh district. Indications are that the business trend will be steadily upward."

A slight decrease may be noted in the holiday trade, due to the market depression, believes George H. Price, chairman of the First National Bank of St. Paul, Minn., but he says that in general "business is in a healthy condition. There is no reason for believing that 1930 will not be a normal year."

SHIPPING ABOVE NORMAL

Early stabilization of business was predicted by James P. Butler, president of the Canal Bank and Trust Company, largest bank in the south, at New Orleans. He said: "There is nothing wrong with business. Conditions in New Orleans, to say the least, are normal. With good crops and good prices, with shipping from this port above normal, I believe that we are in for a good year."

"Modern industry is on a most substantial basis and need have no fear for the future, providing it proceeds with the necessary caution," was the optimistic view of John O. Lonsdale of St. Louis, president of the American Bankers' Association.

"Basically sound" are commercial, industrial and agricultural conditions in the Pacific Northwest, reported James F. Spangler, Seattle, Wash., banker. "There is no strictly local influence that could be interpreted as other than favorable for the immediate future," he asserted. "Unless the effect of the collapse of the securities market should be reflected in commercial and industrial fields by the marked curtailment of purchases and panicky efforts to reduce stocks, the outlook for the immediate future in legitimate business is favorable."

VALUES CALLED SOUND That there is "business for those who, at a fair price are seeking a safe and profitable employment," was the statement of A. P. Giannini, president of the Trans-American Corporation and founder of the Bank of Italy. "The principal industries of the country are in good condition," he said, "and values are as sound as ever."

"The south has been less affected by the recent stock market debacle than any other section, but the country undoubtedly is facing a period of recuperation," Eugene R. Black, governor of the Federal Reserve bank of Atlanta, declared.

"We have been living in an Elysian dream, in an era of profitless prosperity, for the last two or three years," he said. "Now we shall have to go to work. Our young men especially shall have to go to work. All values come from the land, mines, forests and crops. I wouldn't have believed that six months ago, but I am convinced of it now."

"LITTLE TO WORRY ABOUT" The outlook for the future is good and "business throughout the intermountain region is on a sound basis," found Lafayette Hanchett, chairman of the board of the Salt Lake branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco. "As far as matters in this section are concerned, there is little to worry about," he said. That conditions throughout New England are getting "much better," was the word from Redfield Proctor, president of the New England Trade Council. "New England is particularly fortunate in its diversity of industry," he pointed out. "For example, our textiles have been hit, but they are only a small part of our business—which means that the general fabric is not seriously impaired."

A Further Reduction in LONG DISTANCE TELEPHONE RATES

EFFECTIVE JANUARY 1, 1930

THE Wisconsin Telephone Company announces a reduction in various rates for Long Distance telephone service, effective January 1, 1930. This is the fourth reduction in long distance rates within little more than three years.

The present reduction affects principally station-to-station day rates on calls to points 60 to 300 miles distant.

This will make calls to out of town points more economical than ever. On the present volume of calls, it will mean a saving of more than $5,000,000 a year to telephone users of the United States. It is in keeping with the fundamental policy of the Bell System, which is to provide the best possible telephone service at a cost as low as is consistent with financial safety.

Announcements giving more detailed information will appear shortly.
